'DON'T MAKE ME STAB YOU TOO'

Sent to prison: Patrick Torrado

Knife thug's chilling threat to cab driver

By Russ Lawrence

russ.lawrence@nlhnews.co.uk

A THUG, who stabbed a man and threatened to do the same days later to a minicab driver he was unaware had witnessed the first attack, has been locked up.

The minicab driver had phoned police and gone to the aid of the 40-year-old stab victim after seeing the unprovoked attack by 23-year-old Patrick Torrado, in Broad Lane, South Tottenham, on the evening of Wednesday, March 4.

Torrado, of Copperfield Road, South Tottenham, fled the scene,

Wood Green Crown Court heard last week. The driver had collected Torrado from the cab office and dropped him at his home, at which point Torrado refused to pay the fare and warned him: "A few days ago I stabbed a Polish guy. Don't make me stab you too."

The driver reported the incident and, using information from him as well as CCTV footage, officers carried out a search of Torrado's home.

Trainers matching those worn by the knifeman in CCTV footage were discovered, along with a lock knife. The trainers were sent away for forensic analysis and found to have the victim's blood on them. Torrado was also picked out in an identification parade.

He pleaded guilty to a charge of grievous bodily harm and was sentenced to six years and three months last Tuesday. He also pleaded guilty to possession of an offensive weapon and making off without payment and was sentenced to two years and three months, to run concurrently.

"This was a vicious, unprovoked attack on the victim," said Detective Constable Pembe Rayif, of Haringey CID.

"I am therefore happy that Torrado has justifiably been sent to prison for a considerable amount of time."

Crackdown on illegal sublets

A DOZEN tenants who illegally sublet their council and housing association homes in a cash for keys scam have had their tenancies revoked by Haringey Council following a crackdown.

The registered tenants were renting out the properties while living elsewhere and pocketing a small fortune.

Tenancy fraud is a criminal offence which carries a maximum prison sentence of two years or a fine of up to £5,000.

The freed-up homes will be offered to families on the council's housing waiting list or living in temporary accommodation.

Councillor Jason Arthur, cabinet member for resources and culture, said: "Subletting your council home for personal profit isn't just illegal – it puts extra pressure on the social housing system and stops families who really need a home from finding one."

Visit from Bob

GARDENERS' Question Time panellist Bob Flowerdew will help green-fingered residents out with black spot on their roses or aphids on their runner beans when he gives a talk in Haringey next week.

The renowned organic gardener will be at The Hub, in Lordship Recreation Ground, in Tottenham, on Saturday, September 12, at 2.30pm. He will be giving talks on "no-work gardening" and organic gardening and will answer questions afterwards.

The event is part of the activities for the annual Tottenham Flower Show, which will be held on Saturday, September 19, in Harmony Gardens and Lordship Rec.

Places at the talk need to be booked in advance via glynis@lordshiphub.org.uk

Safeguards aim to secure future of iconic town hall

SAFEGUARDS to secure the future community use of cherished Hornsey Town Hall have been put in place by Haringey Council after it was designated an asset of community value.

The council plans to sell the landmark grade II listed, 1930s' art-deco building and public square in The Broadway, Crouch End, including land for development behind it, later this year.

It is seeking a partner who will rent back the town hall on a long lease and restore it to its former glory, as well as redeveloping the rest of the site.

A pre-condition of its status as a community asset – which Crouch End Arts Festival and other arts groups and activists in the borough had applied for – means any sale or redevelopment to anyone other than a community interest group would be put on hold for six months, enabling it to come up with alternative plans to purchase the assets on behalf of the community.

Should there be no community group bids, the site can be disposed at the end of the six months.

The council says it welcomes bids to restore, lease and run the town hall, together with the development of the remainder of the site, from any interested party which can demonstrate how it will offer community access while securing a lasting future for the building.

And it says strict bidding criteria will mean any proposals failing to demonstrate community access will not be considered.

Alan Strickland, the council's cabinet member for regeneration, said: "We welcomed the asset of community value nomination and I'm pleased that we've been able to give Hornsey Town Hall and Square this official recognition. We share local people's enthusiasm for the town hall, which is why we're committed to finding the best possible long-term future for it – one that will respect and protect its grade II listed architectural heritage, offer community access and secure its future."

Councillor cleared of assault

Labour to consider next move

By Ruth McKee

ruth.mckee@nlhnews.co.uk

A COUNCILLOR has been found not guilty of assault.

Haydar Ulus, 35, of Enstone Road, Brimsdown, has been acquitted of assaulting a man at a cash and carry in Edmonton in February 2014.

He was cleared by a jury at Wood Green Crown Court on Friday.

The accusation centred on an altercation which took place three months before he was elected to Enfield Council in May last year as a Labour member for Haselbury ward, in Edmonton.

He was charged with a count of assault earlier this year and immediately had the Labour whip withdrawn from him, meaning that he has acted as an independent councillor since September 2014.

The Advertiser approached the leader and deputy leader of the council to ask whether Mr Ulus would be reinstated as a Labour councillor following the non-guilty verdict last week.

A spokesman from the council's Labour group said: "At this stage we have not had a chance to convene to discuss the events of Friday."

"Therefore, at this stage, he is still considered to be sitting as an independent councillor."

Mr Ulus was also approached for a comment. However, at time of press he had not returned calls.

Mr Ulus is the principal of Ulus Group – an investment management firm based in Edmonton.

Four in the dock in connection with Hatton Garden jewel heist

FOUR people have appeared in court in connection with the Hatton Garden jewellery heist, in which £10million worth of jewels were stolen from an underground, high security vault.

Laura Perkins, 40, of Manor Court, Bullmoor, appeared in court alongside Brenn Walters, 43, also known as Ben Perkins, of the same address, Terri Robinson, 35, of Sterling Road, Enfield, and her husband Steven Robinson, 46, also of Sterling Road.

All four stand accused of conspiracy to conceal, disguise, convert or transfer criminal property, namely jewellery, between the dates of April 15 and May 19.

They did not enter pleas in the course of the short hearing at Westminster Magistrates' Court last Thursday and were released on bail. They are due to appear at Woolwich Crown Court on Friday for a plea and case management hearing.

Nine people charged with conspiracy to steal and conspiracy to launder money in relation to the heist were remanded in custody when they appeared at Southwark Crown Court on June 4. They will also attend a plea and case management hearing at Woolwich Crown Court on Friday.

Among them are three Enfield men – Hugh Doyle, 48, of Riverside Gardens, Terry Perkins, 67, of Heene Road, and Daniel Jones, 58, of Park Avenue, Bush Hill Park.

Farm's food on the menu for an award

By Shafi Musaddique

newsdesk@nlhnews.co.uk

FOOD producers from Enfield and neighbouring Tottenham are finalists in a competition to find the capital's best grub.

Every year the Urban Food Awards celebrate community-based producers of food and this year the shortlist features Forty Hall Farm, which has made the cut and is the running in both the best banger category and the London Leaves category for its market garden mixed salad.

The farm, based beside the 17th-century Forty Hall manor house, in Forty Hill, Enfield, has been at the forefront of the council's drive to regenerate the borough through its market garden scheme and has been producing vegetable boxes as the Enfield Veg Co for a year.

Farm manager Kate McGeevor said: "It's great to be up against some incredible organisations and gain the recognition for our produce. We work with a small scale with not a huge amount here, but we try to supply quality over quantity."

Also in contention for an award is Wildes Cheese, based in an industrial estate in Queen Street, Tottenham, which has been shortlisted in the Big Smoke's Big Cheese category for its Napier Cheese.

Co-founder of Wildes Cheese Philip Wilton told the Advertiser: "I am totally thrilled to be nominated and to have made the final shortlist with three other cheesemakers."

"This is about more than just us as a company. For the area of Tottenham to be recognised like this is fantastic."

He added that his factory produces nearly 350 kilograms of cheese every week and supplies cheese for foodie

Say cheese: Company co-founder Philip Wilton havens including The Library Cafe, in Enfield Town Library, in Church Street, and the Wholefoods organic supermarket.

The winners will be announced on September 24 during the invitation-only Urban Food Feast at Borough Market, in Southwark, south London, during Urban Food Fortnight.

...and our reporter gets a taste of the good life

REWARDING people for trying to produce fresh food within the confines of the M25 is all very well, writes Shafi Musaddique.

But can produce grown or made in a concrete jungle taste of anything other than petrol fumes and gloom?

Forty Hall Farm is as close as it gets to a rural idyll within the greater London area – a haven of peace and quiet less than 20 miles from the city of London.

With views extending beyond the M25 and beyond, across Hertfordshire, there is the unmistakable smell of fresh air.

On my visit on Friday morning, it was a matter of minutes before farm manager Kate McGeevor had plucked some shoots and leaves fresh from the earth and served them up for me to sample.

The salad leaves certainly packed a punch.

Tucking in: Reporter Shafi Musaddique

Not only did they taste far heartier and healthier than any wilted leaves bought in sweaty plastic packaging from a supermarket – but, unlike leaves flown on to shop shelves from hundreds of miles away, they were packed with tangy and zesty flavour.

Mayor of London, who will be sitting on the Urban Food Awards judging panel, will certainly not be picking at his salad when he's selecting the winner.

Purely out of a sense of duty, I also tasted some of the produce from Wildes Cheese, based in Queen Street in Tottenham – admittedly, not somewhere that is traditionally known for its dairy capabilities.

Like the Forty Hall produce, the cheese beats the pale, insipid cheddars sometimes on offer in the high street hands down.

Fresh, home-grown food made by people passionate about food – what's not to like?

Quality rather quantity: Forty Hall Farm manager Kate McGeevor

Young footballers' tribute to Godwin

A FOOTBALL tournament to raise awareness about the dangers of knife and gang crime kicked off last week.

The tournament took place at the Frederick Knight sports ground, off Leaside Road, Upper Edmonton, was organised by the Godwin Lawson Foundation – a charity set up in the wake of the fatal stabbing of 17-year-old Godwin Lawson in 2010.

Although the tournament is an annual event, this was the first year that all the teams taking part comprised only women.

Teams from Arsenal, Charlton Athletic, Crystal Palace, Oxford United, Queens Park Rangers, Spurs and West Ham United played each other.

A group of ten girls from St Anne's High School, in London Road, Enfield, who had attended a residential course at Woodrow High House, in Buckinghamshire, was also among the 150 participants.

Alongside the games there were workshops on knife crime, girls and gangs and the London Ambulance Service showed a harrowing documentary film on what happens when an ambulance receives a 999 call.

Yvonne Lawson set up the foundation in memory of her son Godwin.

She told the Advertiser: "Not a day goes by that I don't think about him."

"Godwin was a very talented boy with such potential. He had a scholarship to train with Oxford United."

"But he lost his life on a visit to London. That's why the Oxford team supports our events."

In a bid to unite young people rather than let the so-called postcode war divide them, she said: "We try to recruit young people from different postcodes so they can all meet and get to know each other."

"This was such an inspirational day. All the teams played to a very high level."

Cloudy2Clear Windows – Service With A Smile!

ADVERTISEMENT

It's been a crazy few months for Cloudy2Clear Windows. The company which specialises in repairing windows which are steamed up, broken or damaged by replacing the panes – not the frames has grown rapidly as homeowners take advantage of their services.

Managing Director Richard Power feels that it's all about service. "Our product is simple. If your double glazing is misted up we can replace the glass at a fraction of the cost of a new window, in any type of frame, and with a new 10 year guarantee. But it's not just about saving people money, although that obviously helps. Many tradespeople have struggled since last year and I honestly feel that during the good times a minority perhaps didn't focus on customer care as much as they should have done. We make sure we turn up when we say we will, do the job the customer requires and leave their house as clean as a whistle. I often get comments back from customers on how they really didn't expect that sort of service which, in a way, is very sad for the service industry as a whole."

Cloudy2Clear service the Enfield, Edmonton, Palmers Green, Winchmore Hill & Southgate areas and Richard is finding that his approach is a major factor in his success. "The truth is that it's not just the personal satisfaction that I get from doing a good job but also it makes good business sense. I get a huge amount of business from friends and family of people I've done work for, which just goes to show how much a little bit of effort is appreciated."

So, if your windows are steamed up, broken or damaged give Richard a call for a free quotation on 0800 61 21 118 and he'll be happy to help!

If you are a denture wearer then this article may be of some interest to you!!
If you can relate to any of the following questions then it is a sign your denture needs attention:

- Do not fit as well on your gums as they used to?
- Are they loose?
- Do not cut food as well as they used to?
- Do they make your face look older?
- Have discoloured despite meticulous cleaning or
- Cause discomfort/pain on chewing?

If any of the above breeds familiar territory then I may be able to alleviate some of these problems for you.

My name is Caroline Persaud I am a qualified CLINICAL DENTAL TECHNICIAN. Many of you may be aware of Dental Technicians/Mechanics who repair and produce dentures for dentists, however, due to recent changes in the Dental law, a group of Dental Care Professionals known as Clinical Dental Technicians have been approved by the General Dental Council and can now see denture wearers who have no natural teeth remaining, directly without having to visit a dentist.

The advantages to you, the patients, are numerous. You can be treated by a professional who has been clinically trained to undertake the impressions of your mouth and who also has the technical skill to manufacture your denture to meet your requirements.

A more direct, rapid and personalised service, that can be delivered to you in the comfort of your own home or at my day clinic in Edmonton.

Company faces sentence over fatal safety breach

Court ready to make ruling after tragic death of 16-year old Alfie

By Ruth McKee
ruth.mckee@nlhnews.co.uk

THE sentencing of a company which admitted a breach of health and safety on a scaffold from which a teenage employee fell to his death is due to get under way today.

Rooftop Rooms, based in Baker Street, Enfield, pleaded guilty to one count of failing to discharge a duty to employees on the second day of a trial at Snaresbrook Crown Court in March.

The firm had been accused of causing the death of apprentice Alfie Perrin, 16, of Enfield, who fell from scaffolding at a building site in Camden Road, in Wanstead, east London, in November 2012.

Initially, the company had stood trial alongside Andrew Voy, who had been Alfie's supervisor when he fell through a gap in the scaffold.

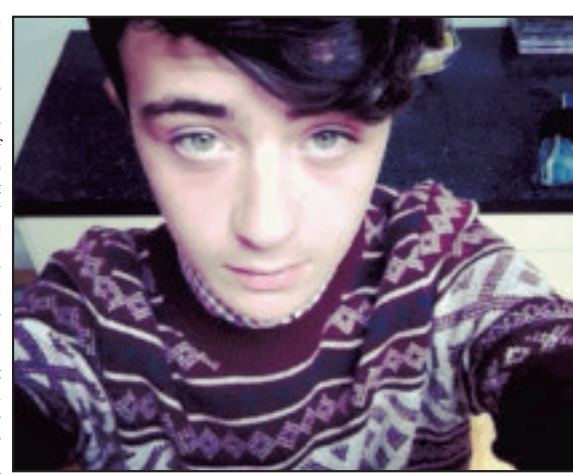

Mr Voy stood accused of the teenager's manslaughter, but was acquitted by a jury on March 31.

However, although the company pleaded guilty to the count of failing to discharge a duty to employees, it maintained that the breach of health and safety was not responsible for the teenager's death.

The sentencing of the company was due to take place at Snaresbrook in May. However, it was adjourned so that a Newton Hearing can take place today.

A Newton Hearing means that Judge Martyn Zeidman QC will listen to evidence from witnesses before deciding if the company is culpable for Alfie's death.

The hearing is expected to last for three days.

Tragedy: Alfie Perrin died after falling through scaffolding

Residents evacuated after blaze rips through block

RESIDENTS escaped from a blaze in a block of flats in Enfield Lock last week.

More than 30 people were evacuated from the flats in Tysoe Avenue, near the junction with Ordnance Road, last Tuesday afternoon.

The fire ripped through the flats on the ground, first and second floors.

It took 40 firefighters, from eight engines, four hours to battle the blaze. The fire badly damaged flats on the ground, first and second floor.

The cause of the blaze is being investigated.

A spokesman from London Fire Brigade explained that officers believe the fire started outside the building and then spread inside the block through air vents.

Ten-year childhood obesity plan is missing the target, figures reveal

Slight rise in number of number of reception-age youngsters who are classed as overweight

By Ruth McKee

ruth.mckee@nlhnews.co.uk

ENFIELD Council looks set to miss fat-fighting targets it set for itself nearly five years ago.

In 2011, the local authority, already concerned about soaring levels of childhood obesity, issued an action plan which aimed to dramatically reduce the childhood obesity figures in the borough.

As was reported at the time, the council, together with NHS North Central London, initiated a ten-year plan to make Enfield the London authority with the lowest number of overweight kids.

The childhood healthy weight strategy aimed to freeze the escalating number of obese children by 2015.

In 2011, figures from the National Child Measurement programme showed that one in four reception-age children and almost 40 per cent of Year 6 pupils in Enfield were classed as overweight or obese – more than both the national and London average.

The most recent comparable figures available were published by the National Child Measurement programme earlier this year and revealed that 14.2 per cent of reception-age kids were overweight and 12.2 per cent of that age group were obese – a slight rise rather than a freeze in the number of reception-age youngsters classed as overweight or obese.

However, the figures for Year 6 look more promising with 14.8 per cent of that year group classed as overweight and 24.8 per cent classed as obese – meaning that the total number of overweight and obese children is slightly down on 2011 at 39.6 per cent.

But the council is keen to stress that the most recent figures are not up-to-date and any assessment of the scheme's success must wait until the 2015 figures have been collated.

Cabinet member for public health and sport Nneka Keazor said that the obesity epidemic was rising across the western world and must be tackled by organisations working in partnership.

She added: "The issue is a major challenge at a continental, national and local level, which will require concerted action at both European Union and the United Kingdom government levels.

"Consequently, Enfield Council, in partnership with colleagues working in the NHS, schools and children's centres and sport and leisure facilities, has developed a wide range of initiatives designed to give families the advice and support they need to adopt more healthy lifestyles, live a more active lives and therefore achieve a healthy weight.

"All partners working with children and families continue to regard this work a priority as part of the suite of services to the local community.

"We acknowledge the significant challenge we face in tackling obesity in our borough and we are redoubling our efforts in an attempt to reduce obesity both in the current generation and for those in the years to come."

The big issue: Enfield Council is currently missing its childhood obesity targets

'Important issue': Enfield North MP Joan Ryan is unhappy at IT system problems

IT failures 'put patients at risk'

By Shafi Musaddique

newsdesk@nlhnews.co.uk

AN MP has launched a scathing attack on a computerised referral programme that has caused lengthy delays to patients' treatment.

Joan Ryan, the MP for Enfield North, says that many patients have been put at risk because of repeated failures in the IT system operated by the now defunct Barnet and Chase Farm Hospitals Foundation Trust between 2013 and 2014.

The Royal Free NHS Foundation Trust took over from the Barnet and Chase Farm trust in July 2014.

Citing figures from an investigation by Healthwatch Enfield, the MP said that 77 patients experienced delays between referral by their GP and treatment in hospital due to the poor IT system and were considered to have suffered harm as a result of the delay.

In an open letter to David Sloman, the chief executive of the Royal Free NHS Foundation Trust, which now runs both Chase Farm Hospital, in The Ridgeway, Enfield, and Barnet Hospital, the MP said: "This is a really important issue that has had implications for people in Enfield and elsewhere, particularly for those put at risk of clinical harm due to delays in their treatment."

"All those affected deserve an apology and to know what happened and why."

A spokesman for the trust said that an apology has been issued to any patient who had experienced delays to treatment due to the glitch in the referral IT system.

"The Royal Free London NHS Foundation Trust has been consistently open and transparent about how it has been working towards re-achieving the 18-week referral target," he added.

Loss of A&E 'has not had negative impact', claims health watchdog

THE closure of Chase Farm Hospital's A&E department has not had a negative impact, according to a report by the borough's health watchdog.

Healthwatch Enfield concluded that provisions for emergency healthcare at the Urgent Care Centre at Chase Farm, in The Ridgeway, Enfield, have been successfully meeting patient needs since the centre replaced A&E services in December 2013.

The report concluded that the urgent care centre is coping with demand – and each week treats roughly 900 patients within the four-hour government target.

Since January 2015, the urgent care centre introduced extended opening hours, from 8am to 10pm, as part of a pilot scheme to cope with the busy winter period.

Despite record numbers, the report concludes that the clinical strategy – which split emergency services between the urgent care centre, North Middlesex University Hospital, in Edmonton, and Barnet Hospital – has seen a reduction in the number of people seeking emergency assistance at Chase Farm.

The chief executive of Healthwatch Enfield Lorna Rieth said: "Local people should feel reassured that the closure of the A&E at Chase Farm Hospital has not resulted in poorer urgent and emergency care services."

Get to grips with the great outdoors

SURVIVAL skills are dominating a programme of walks as potential wilderness explorers are encouraged to lace up their boots for another adventure in Trent Park.

Following hot on the heels of the last month's survival walk, the latest activity planned by Black Rainbow Events will feature even more ways to last for days in the great outdoors.

Former park rangers Alan Mitellas and Andy Hawsworth will show eager participants how to filter water found in the open, how to forage for safe, edible food, ways to summon help and even what to pack in a rucksack to ensure you don't become stranded in the middle of nowhere with no suitable kit to hand.

This walk, scheduled for September 6, starting at 10am, is the ninth in the Trent Park guided walks programme which has stretched throughout the summer months.

Like the previous survival walk, the event is funded by Enfield Council's Residents' Priority Fund and organised by Black Rainbow Events.

Alan Mitellas, director of Black Rainbow Events, said: "Following on from our highly successful survival event in August, this second walk further explores how to keep safe when exploring the outdoors and how to get through a survival situation in a natural environment.

"The walk is free and will even include a little treat for participants at the end".

I AM writing this piece in the middle of what journalists call “the silly season”, largely because it is traditionally quiet in terms of political news and events.

I am sure most readers would agree that on the one hand this summer proves the exception, while, on the other, the chaotic, not to say shambolic, Labour leadership contest makes the description entirely apposite.

The contest has been characterised by a mixture of confusion, lacklustre campaigning by most of the candidates and bloodletting on a scale not seen in the Labour Party since the late 1970s/early 1980s.

The other big story of the season is more local, but no less serious. I refer to the council’s proposal to introduce segregated cycle lanes along Green Lanes, Ridge Avenue, Village Road and London Road – and Church Street, in Enfield Town.

The consultations for these schemes are ongoing, but experts who have examined the documents have concluded they are at best inaccurate and at worst misleading.

Either way, for something on which the council has already spent £1.98million preparing for consultation (but has not to date prepared either economic or environmental impact assessments), it is pretty shameful and falls well short of what residents and businesses are entitled to expect from their local authority when it is proposing expenditure of the best part of £42m of public money.

Forget the 1990s – how about the 1970s and 1980s?

IT was interesting to note that MP Kate Osamor said last week, when referring to her support of Jeremy Corbyn, that “...the politics of the 1990s and 2000s are not what people want” (“I have never seen anything like this”, Advertiser, August 26).

I agree with her on that, but I am willing to bet that people do not want a return to the politics of the 1970s and 1980s either, something that Mr Corbyn seems all too keen on. Obviously, it is not my business as a Tory councillor who Labour selects as a leader (though judging by the vetting process I could have secured a vote if I had applied).

But I note that the local Labour parties in Edmonton, Enfield North and Enfield Southgate all gave their vote to Mr Corbyn.

The far left takeover of the local Labour Party appears to be almost complete, yet I wonder how many Labour councillors in the borough are happy with this?

It is going to be a fascinating year watching the Labour Party in Enfield implode.

Pedestrianised streets have plenty of benefits

THERE aren’t many benefits to getting old, but the benefit of having “seen it all before” is one. And I thought of that as I read your piece, “Going into battle against plans for cycling” (Advertiser, August 26).

Why? Because it reminded me of similar protests about the conversion of town centre high streets into pedestrianised streets.

“People won’t shop if they can’t park,” they shouted, but look what happened. No retailer would want to go back.

Of course not because it has been shown that shoppers like the absence of traffic, the quiet, the pleasure of stopping to have a chat with friends, the fact that their children are safer.

Not that our high streets will be traffic-free because they are on through routes, but if the council’s plans come to fruition fewer car journeys will be made and bikes – dangerous as they are if ridden selfishly – are not potential killers to match cars, nor do they emit gases to ruin your health.

Furthermore, the council will be using some of its hard-won Mini Holland funds to improve the so-called public realm (wider, better-maintained pavements, buildings spruced up, trees and other plants, crossing the carriage-way made safer) in high streets for which there are case studies to show footfall is raised. Shopkeepers can also help by improving the look and convenience of their premises.

There are several ways of making high streets safer to attract footfall, but speed at 20mph or lower is key. Calm traffic is less intrusive, safer, creates fewer emissions and is the only way to give parents the confidence to licence the independence of their children.

It’s a must, but so is reducing traffic speed on routes to the high street, so it’s to be hoped that the council has that in hand.

Paying through the nose

THE decision to put up fares on national rail services again in the new year will come as a massive blow for many Londoners, particularly when we also hear that fares have risen three times as fast as wages in the past five years.

There is no escaping that for the many Londoners who have no choice but to commute to work, above inflation ticket price increases are effectively a tax on jobs. Indeed, commuters have endured years of inflation-busting fare hikes. For too long passengers – particularly those in outer London – have been paying through the nose for dramatically overcrowded and often unreliable services. Many passengers on those routes will be left struggling to understand why they are forced to pay more, yet see little improvement to their services, despite numerous promises over the years.

Boris Johnson has yet to announce what he will do with Tube fares come the new year, but with Tube ticket prices already having risen 43 per cent during his time as mayor, surely it’s time Londoners got a fair deal.

We need to be more ambitious

IF you have tried to buy or even rent a property in this area, then I am sure you know how hard it is to find something you want and can afford.

The problem is easy to define. It’s because there are not enough homes being built. But the solution is complex.

Development negotiations are taking too long, rules don’t incentivise construction and land (often owned by TfL, GLA, NHS or local councils) is not being made available.

If we are to solve this problem, we need to be more ambitious.

If Londoners are to get the homes they need, we need to incentivise developers to build on land they own, open up public sector land for development and design homes local people want to live in such as those championed by the organisation Create Streets.

We must listen to what developers, councils and your readers have to say in 2015 if we are to meet the demands of Londoners who want their own homes.

Man charged with murder after stabbing

Investigating: Police officers outside a house in Shrewsbury Road, Edmonton

By Lucy Purdy

newsless@nlhnews.co.uk

A MAN has been accused of a murder in Bounds Green on Monday.

Bernardas Petreikis, 23, a Lithuanian, of Shrewsbury Road, Bounds Green, was charged on the same day and appeared in custody at Highbury Corner magistrates' court yesterday morning.

Police were called to an address in Shrewsbury Road shortly after 2am on Monday to reports of a fight.

Paramedics and police tried first aid on a 35-year-old man, who was suffering from stab wounds. He died before reaching hospital.

The fatal stabbing came just hours after a man was shot and killed by police in Cedar Road, Enfield, on Sunday close to midnight.

This comes just one month after a 28-year-old man was stabbed to death in Larimore Road, Enfield.

Earlier this year, legislation proposed by former Enfield North MP Nick de Bois, nicknamed Enfield's Law, came into force – meaning that anyone found to have carried a knife more than once will face a mandatory prison sentence.

Schoolchildren are cupcake crackers

By Ruth McKee

ruth.mckee@nlhnews.co.uk

GUILT-FREE designer cupcakes might sound too good to be true – but customers at one foodie haven have been living the dream.

Three sets of colourful cupcakes, inspired by children's books, took pride of place last week in The Library Café, in Enfield Town Library.

Decorative swirls of bright colour perched on the counter as owner and former Great British Bake Off contestant Urvashi Roe explained how she had been able bring to life the winning recipes of youngsters from Merryhills Primary School.

At the end of last term, children at the school, in Bincote Road, Enfield, were asked to design a cupcake, with healthy elements, based on a children's book.

The three winners – Cemal Egeman, 10, Michaela Georgopoulos, 10, and Mar-Valisha McGhan, eight – were rewarded for their efforts by getting to see their ideas brought to life by Urvashi, who baked and decorated the cupcakes before selling them alongside the many treats and healthy lunches which have become the café's trademark.

"We loved the idea of the ginger sponge combined with marmalade filling," she explained, describing Cemal's Paddington Bear-inspired creation, with blue frosting and a strawberry hat.

To the right of the bright blue cake, pretty red cakes topped with fluffy vanilla buttercream icing were Mar-valisha's Charlie and the Chocolate Factory-inspired designs.

"One of the things we as judges loved about this design was the way that it looked almost like fluffy white clouds on top of a sweet shop," said Urvashi.

The winning cupcake design, which was chosen by the judges last month, was made by Michaela, who took her inspiration from The Very Hungry Caterpillar.

"This design was the only one that was technically a bit tricky as Michaela had originally put grapes on the top of her cupcake, but when we tried that, in proportion, it didn't look quite right, so we substituted it with green jelly beans instead," explained Urvashi.

A piece of cake: Merryhills pupils Mar-Valisha McGhan, Cemal Egeman and Michaela Georgopoulos, with Urvashi Roe and their winning designs

The cakes have been on sale in the café attached to the library, in Church Street, Enfield Town, and all the money that has been raised is going to Action Against Hunger, a charity that works to battle hunger in the developing world.

Urvashi revealed that the total had reached £150 – and some money was still to be totted up.

Of the three designers responsible for the edible literary creations, only Mar-Valisha had seen and tasted her cake before the Advertiser caught up with them last Thursday morning.

"They are nicer than I imagined," said Michaela as she bit into her cupcake, topped with lime green dessicated coconut, for the first time.

So, after the success of this bake-off of sorts – will the competition become an annual event for Urvashi and the team at the library?

"Well, as we aren't really a confectionery café, cupcakes are not really what we're known for," she added.

"So maybe next year we will ask children to design a literary-themed salad – or even a sandwich for British Sandwich Week."

Pop-up school has proved a good idea

By Shafi Musaddique

newsdesk@nlhnews.co.uk

A POP-UP shop with an educational twist has proved a hit with the borough's big thinkers.

Enfield Thinks, the pop-up shop for lectures, classes and workshops, was set up in June in Burleigh Way, Enfield Town, and was specifically tailored for residents with enquiring minds, boasting classes on themes as diverse as business development, agriculture, hairdressing, local history and first aid.

Based on the results of user satisfaction surveys, The service was rated as excellent by 92 per cent of people who attended sessions.

The project – which was designed to serve as a form of summer school for the borough – was a joint operation between Enfield Council and Birkbeck College, University of London.

In total, over the three months the pop-up shop was up and running – a total of 886 people attended 266 sessions.

Alan Sitkin, cabinet member for regeneration and business, said: "Enfield Council leads the way when it comes to providing training and learning opportunities for its residents.

"The feedback was fantastic with the vast majority of people loving the experience. We really want to run this again next year so that even more people can benefit."

Fresh bid to resolve the future of derelict mansion

By Lucy Purdy

newsdesk@nlhnews.co.uk

THE future of a historic mansion in the borough will be shaped partly by residents as consultation on Broomfield House gets under way this week.

People are being asked to contribute their views on what should happen to the grade II listed building in Broomfield Park, Palmers Green, which was created originally as a timber-framed house in the 16th century.

The building was badly damaged by fires in the 1980s and 1990s and has never been restored, even though several schemes have been proposed in the intervening years.

Enfield Council would like to hear ideas on the future of the site ahead of a second consultation on possible options early next year.

The consultation runs until November 30.

The local authority has commissioned architects to come up "viable ideas" for the future of the house and stable block and will choose a preferred design option in the spring.

Enfield Council's cabinet member for environment Daniel Anderson said: "We need to make a decision about the future of Broomfield House. The building is in a terrible state and we desperately need to resolve its future once and for all.

"This is, therefore, a final opportunity for residents and other interested parties to shape the future of this historic site."

The authority is working with Historic England, the Heritage Lottery Fund, the Broomfield House Trust and Friends of Broomfield Park to explore ways of financing renovations.

People can give their views at www.enfield.gov.uk/broomfield_consultation or during the Palmers Green Festival on Sunday.

Blooming marvels make their mark

STAR gardeners have been recognised as winners of the latest Enfield in Bloom competition.

Growers from across the borough have scooped gongs in the annual contest to find the borough's most green-fingered residents and its most beautifully blooming spaces.

The competition was organised by the Enfield in Bloom committee and sponsored by Enfield Council and Tottenham Hotspur FC.

Winners included schools, residents, pubs, public spaces and parks. All will receive certificates at an awards evening in November.

Pegasus Court, in Green Lanes, Winchmore Hill, and Oakdene House, in Bycullah Road, Enfield, were named best communal gardens while Brodie Road and Primrose Avenue, in Enfield, were the best residential streets.

The best garden at a public building was chosen as Our Lady of Mount Carmel church, in London Road, Enfield Town.

Forty Hall Park's walled garden and the community orchard in Broomfield Park were selected as making the best horticultural contribution to the community, while the Moon Under Water, in Chase Side, Enfield, was declared to have the best pub garden.

The cabinet member for environment Daniel Anderson said: "This year's winners have demonstrated a remarkable degree of skill and ability to produce spectacular displays in a variety of settings and I congratulate them all for their hard work.

"Enfield in Bloom is one of the jewels in the borough's horticultural crown and each and every person involved in this competition, regardless of how they got on, has made a fantastic contribution to the look and feel of this borough."

WHAT'S NEW NEAR YOU

without resorting to surgery

It can feel as if there is constant pressure on us to look good (and young) at all times. Photographs of ourselves are often shared on social media, where friends and strangers alike can view our faces; sometimes taking the time to comment on or maybe 'like' a picture. Landmark events, such as special anniversaries, our children's wedding or the prospect of dating after a divorce or bereavement can also be motivating factors for us to look for ways to reduce the signs of an aging face. For actress Gillian Taylforth it was her impending 60th birthday!

Gillian is probably best known for her portrayal of Kathy Beale in East Enders. She has also appeared in The Bill, Footballers' Wives and Hollyoaks, as well as Celebrity Big Brother, Strictly Come Dancing and Loose Women.

Now 59 years old and not afraid to admit it, Gillian had always been meticulously careful to look after her face. Recently however, the popular TV star has had a non-surgical skin lift known as Silhouette Soft. She approached the procedure with great caution as her face needed to remain mobile and she wanted to continue to emote on her return to TV screens this autumn.

Commenting on her motivation to have a Silhouette Soft treatment Gillian said:

"As I approach my 60th birthday and HD TV improves I am aware that my appearance is scrutinised on television and in the press. I am keen to age appropriately, but I want to look good for my age too. However, as an actress it is vital that I have an expressive face – on the small screen it is often the smallest gestures which convey our inner emotions – and in fact on my most recent production, the producers would often caution younger actresses about treatments which prevented their faces from moving."

Subtlety is key

Like Gillian, we all strive to look the best we can for our age, and for those around us to believe we have achieved this naturally. Healthy diets and exercise are of course important, but occasionally nature needs a helping hand. Dr B Beheshti, from NL Clinic, Southgate concurs:

"We find our clients are looking for a 'natural looking' younger version of themselves. (Gone are the days of the 'trout pout'!) They want to look like themselves ... but on a really good day! Silhouette Soft is a ground-breaking new treatment which is known as the non-surgical skin lift (sometimes referred to as a thread lift). I recommend it to redefine the faces of patients looking for ways to combat sagging jowls and loss of volume in the midface area – but who don't want surgery. This is a notoriously hard area to treat effectively, yet Silhouette Soft produces an extremely natural-looking result which leaves the face completely mobile."

There is minimal downtime after treatment and the initial results are immediate. Even better, the results improve over the next three months! This is because the effects of the treatment are two pronged: The lifting effect is immediate and discreet - the tension of the inserted threads lift the sagging skin. The regenerative effect is gradual and natural - after insertion the reabsorbable cones on the thread anchor themselves into the tissues and stimulate the body to produce its own collagen. This action, which continues over time, helps increase the volume of jowly areas and restores a more youthful shapeliness to the face gradually to achieve a natural looking result.

The minimally invasive treatment can only be performed by a specially trained doctor. Local anaesthetic is applied to the face so that the patient does not feel a thing. Once numb a Silhouette Soft thread is introduced just under the skin. The procedure takes under an hour, and whilst there may be a small amount of bruising around the entry points, this can be covered with mineral make-up, allowing normal life to resume after treatment.

A typical Silhouette Soft treatment consists of four threads, and costs £1,500. Treatment is offered subject to the clinician confirming a patient's suitability, but typically suits someone aged 40+ who can push the skin on their face upwards by around a centimetre. A typical treatment lasts 18 months – 2 years.

Silhouette Soft is offered at NL Clinic. More information can be found at www.nlclinic.co.uk/

Drop in for a look at plans for Meridian development

By Jo Siedlecka

newsdesk@nlhnews.co.uk

RESIDENTS with queries about the development of an area of land in Edmonton have an opportunity to find out more about the project.

A series of drop-in sessions detailing potential proposals for the Meridian Water development will begin on Tuesday at the Angel Community Centre, in Raynham Road, Edmonton.

Last month Enfield Council announced that a number of developers are in the running to take on the project including the Peabody Housing Association, Berkeley Homes, Barrett and Segro, Taylor Wimpey & Dorchester and PCPD & Wilmot Dixon.

Council chiefs are keen for people who have queries or concerns about the project to approach officers and find out the exact nature of the development. A council spokesman told the Advertiser: "This development will provide 8,000 new homes and 3,000 jobs. The buildings are going to be built to very green specifications.

"There will be better trains, green spaces and three new schools.

"The drop-in sessions will be able to provide more information about the overall timetable of development, scheme designs, the potential impact of the construction work and opportunities for the community.

"There will be specialists available to answer questions, plans and drawings to view and refreshments. Children will be invited to help with the design of the play areas."

The first session will take place from 3.30pm to 7.30pm on Tuesday.

Anyone wanting more information can log on to www.enfield.gov.uk/meridianwater or call 020 8379 3885.

Jobs fair gets down to work

By Jo Siedlecka

newsdesk@nlhnews.co.uk

JOB seekers are being encouraged to check out the latest council-run employment fair later this month.

The event, at which a host of employers will set out stalls in the main hall of Edmonton Leisure Centre, is set to take place on Wednesday, September 30.

Employment experts will be on hand to answer questions about career choices, including self-employment and business start-ups.

It will be an opportunity to get questions answered and meet employers.

With increasing awareness of how joblessness and unemployment can affect mental health, there will also be talks on health and well-being while job hunting as well as advice on how to get into working in fashion and even tips on how to use social media for effective job searches.

Some of the big organisations involved in the event include the RAF, the London Fire Brigade, the London Ambulance Service, the Royal Free Hospital and Fusion Lifestyle, who run leisure centres in the borough.

Alan Sitkin, Enfield Council's cabinet member for regeneration and business, is hopeful about the outcome of the day as over the past few months the local authority has adopted a new proactive style, he explained.

It has been approaching potential employers and encouraging new businesses to move into redeveloped industrial estates.

Looking for work: A women's jobs fair in Enfield in 2013

"Unemployment is declining faster in Enfield than in any other outer London boroughs" said Mr Sitkin.

He is advising job hunters to bring along multiple copies of their most up-to-date CVs.

The Careers and Jobs Fair will run from 10am to 3pm at the leisure centre, in The Broadway, Edmonton.

Apprentices' chance to sign on at council

COUNCIL chiefs have rolled out a raft of new apprenticeships in time for the new academic year.

In a bid to lure school leavers to the local authority, the council is offering apprenticeships in business administration, catering, cleaning and social care as well as stints in the culture and arts department.

While the Advertiser has covered the impact that job losses have had on the council with an empty floor of the civic centre, in Silver Street, Enfield, Town, now let out to administrative staff from the Royal Free London NHS Foundation Trust, council chiefs insist that apprenticeship vacancies are at the top of their list of priorities.

To register an interest in updates on all apprenticeship vacancies, email

Joyceline.Hogan@enfield.gov.uk

Apprentices are paid less than the minimum wage with the government recommending that they receive £3.30 per hour.

The local authority is also encouraging employers who are interested in taking on apprentices to come forward and get help on training and employment patterns.

Bosses interested in the scheme should also get in touch with Joyceline Hogan.

The Enfield Town and Country Show now in its 63rd year is to be held on Saturday 12th and Sunday 13th September, promising to be bigger and better than ever before, with even more new attractions and excitement for the whole family. From daredevil arena displays, to aroma-filled cookery demonstrations, rural crafts, Charity fun dog shows and lots for the children to see and do, you'll find plenty to occupy everyone for the whole day.

There are so many fantastic attractions in the main ring this year to suit all tastes and ages. Whether it be the family fun of the Falconry displays, a favourite to all visiting the show or the thrilling and exciting Stunt Monkeys motorcycle display team with breathtaking stunts. The Stunt Monkeys have wowed crowds at 100's of shows over the years, including British Superbikes, the team is made up of two of Britain's top-ranked trials stunt riders. On four legs the main ring will be welcoming the fast moving, exciting sheep racing. This hilarious and exciting demonstration will have everyone on the edge of their seats. Medieval Archery re-enactment from fabulous Now Strike Archery, Speed Chainsaw Carving and The Zulu's dance troupe. At a slightly slower pace we will have the fabulous Horticultural Tent along with superb floral displays, beekeeping, baking and so much more.

An amazing children's area with so much to do and see for free whether it be our Punch and Judy Shows, Magic Shows, Storytelling, Gemma's Petting Farm, Amazing Reptiles will be giving talks on Boa Constrictors and will have a huge display of reptiles to see and even hold one for yourself.

This year we will have the Enfield Festivals of Dogs running alongside the show which will host a fun dog show with over 25 classes, Charity Dog Shows, Gundog Scurrying and Dog Agility Demonstrations as well as Have A Go dog agility. There will be a main dog ring with so many fun and exciting things happening during the day including the "Dogs Have Got Talent" and our Best Dressed Dog competition. Something for all your four legged members of the family.

As well as all of the above, we will have over fourteen amazing bands playing daily along with some fabulous dance acts and pop up points showcasing the best of Enfield.

Forty Hall hosts 'mini-Glastonbury'

By Jo Siedlecka

newsdesk@nlhnews.co.uk

"MAGICAL" is the word which keeps coming up to describe the Livestock Festival, which was held on the Forty Hall Estate on Saturday.

More than 1,600 people lined up in the grounds of the estate, in Forty Hill, Enfield, to hear some of the best rock, blues, reggae, soul and folk bands around – including the Trembling Wilburys, Silencerz and tshe Gregory Gang on three separate stages in the beautiful woodland setting.

There were also food stalls and a plethora of family-friendly activities including face painting and games.

But for many children at the event the star attractions were the latest arrivals on the farm – six baby piglets.

The evening ended on the woodland stage with gypsy swing band Boom La Tete.

"They were superb musicians" Andrew Wanshaw, one of the organisers of the event told the Advertiser.

"The feedback has been tremendous," he added.

"It was a roaring success. We had a third more people than last year. If we carry on like this, it could become a mini-Glastonbury."

A donation from some of the money raised from the festival will be going towards providing musical instruments for schools in Enfield.

To be Frank – he's a natural entertainer...

By Russ Lawrence

russ.lawrence@nlhnews.co.uk

WHICH artist was the first to have three consecutive UK chart number ones?

If you correctly answered Frank Ifield, you're either a pop trivia buff, or a devoted fan pushing 60 or older.

Before the emergence of The Beatles, in the early 1960s, the country and western singer topped the charts with I Remember You, the double A-side titled Love-sick Blues and She Taught Me How to Yodel, plus Wayward Wind. The Fab Four, who had been a support act on one of Frank's tours, would later repeat and surpass his feat, but the legendary British-born, Aussie-bred entertainer with the distinctive yodel in his voice, had permanently secured his place in pop's firmament.

Now aged 77, he will be taking a nostalgic look back on a career spanning five decades when he appears at Wyllotts Theatre, in Darkes Lane, Potters Bar, next Thursday afternoon (September 10) in I Remember You! An Audience with the Legendary Frank Ifield.

In the show, which celebrates his career, he recounts memories and tells incredible anecdotes of the famous entertainers he has worked with over the years, including The Beatles, Cliff Richard, Olivia Newton-John and Duane Eddy.

Unable to sing since 1986 after his throat muscles were damaged, by an endoscope before surgery for a collapsed lung, he has carved out a new career as a showbiz manager and TV presenter.

Frank was born in Coventry and raised in Birmingham. His parents were Australian and emigrated back down under when he was ten.

Despite enjoying success as a performer there, he was unknown when he returned to Britain in 1959.

I Remember You, which was released in 1962, became his signature tune and also made the record books as the first single to sell one million copies in Britain.

His fourth and final number one Confessin' (That I Love You) made the top spot in 1963.

To this day, Frank's recordings of I Remember You and Waltzing Matilda are instantly identified with him, wherever they are heard.

"My passion to entertain was evident from a very early age, influenced mainly by country music," he says.

"I have been very fortunate in that I have always known what I wanted to do and just followed my heart."

The show begins at 2pm.

ME AND EARL AND THE DYING GIRL (12A, 105 mins)

THE good die young and that seems to be the inevitable outcome of Alfonso Gomez-Rejon's beguiling and intensely moving screen adaptation of Jesse Andrews' debut novel.

A teenage girl is diagnosed with cancer, classmates offer their heartfelt sympathy and one childhood friend sacrifices his studies to support her through chemotherapy.

There are obvious similarities to The Fault In Our Stars, but while that film had audiences sniffing from the opening frame, Me And Earl And The Dying Girl mines a rich vein of offbeat humour to stem the tears.

"This isn't a touching romantic story," confides Greg Gaines (Thomas Mann), the socially awkward high school student and narrator of a remarkable film. To some extent he's right: there's no boy meets girl cuteness here, no stolen kisses or wish fulfillment about the healing power of nascent love.

But his story is better affecting, recounted as a scrapbook of bittersweet vignettes and stop-motion animation, accompanied with self-explanatory onscreen captions like "Day 1 Of Doomed Friendship".

At the behest of his parents (Connie Britton, Nick Offerman), Greg visits estranged childhood friend Rachel Kushner (Olivia Cooke), who has been diagnosed with leukaemia.

A faltering friendship takes root, to the delight of Rachel's boozy mother (Molly Shannon).

To try and impress his high school crush Madison (Katherine C Hughes), Greg agrees to make a film for Rachel with his partner in creative crime Earl (RJ Cyler). They have been producing charming homages for years including A Sockwork Orange, Senior Citizen Kane and Anatomy Of A Burger.

Me And Earl And The Dying Girl is a beautifully judged rite of passage drama that eschews mawkishness and emotional manipulation in favour of a richly detailed portrait of adolescent dreams in crisis.

Gomez-Rejon's whimsical visual flourishes are a constant delight. Mann doesn't strike a false note in the tricky lead role, gelling naturally with Cyler and Cooke.

"This isn't a sappy love story," Greg emphasises.

No, it's something far more precious, fragile and life-affirming than that.

Market Update

As we enter September, leading property website Rightmove are reporting the lowest numbers of property for sale for some years and you could be forgiven for thinking that the property market was quiet but the reality is somewhat different.

Lower than normal stocks of property for sale is often an indicator of a strong market and one where property does not sit on the shelves for long. That is certainly the case at the current time with anything that is sensibly priced and well marketed.

The growing regularity of statements from the Bank of England that interest rates are set to rise in the next twelve months is possibly causing some to think about planned moves but many have factored in an increase into their calculations and, with some exceptional fixed rate mortgages currently available, the impact of any rises is likely to be minimal for the majority of home owners and buyers.

According to the Council for Mortgage Lenders, the numbers of arrears and repossession have fallen to their lowest levels since quarterly records began in 2008. This is clearly good news and, despite slight hiccups in the unemployment figures recently, inflation remains low and the general economic outlook is positive.

The lettings market also remains buoyant. There has been little fall out from the Government's announcement that they will be reducing the amount of tax relief available on buy to let mortgages from 2017 with most landlords taking a long term view. With rising capital values, landlords still see their investments as good news, providing both income and capital growth. Rental values are steady or rising and demand continues to outstrip supply.

The summer weeks are invariably a little distorted in terms of activity with it being the prime holiday period but, as children return to school and "normality" returns, the signs are that there will be a decent market in both sales and lettings during the autumn months ahead.

We shall be delighted to discuss your plans in confidence.

We offer the best of both worlds...

The problem of whether to advertise online or in print is uniquely solved with our range of newspapers which can offer you the benefits of a print campaign with the immediacy of an online presence and all in one package. You can now get the best of both forms of media - advertising and news every week, all week...

If you would like us to send you more information online or in print contact us on 0208 364 4040

We'll give you the best of both worlds...every week, all week!

In this rapidly moving technological age people are finding new ways to advertise, especially online via the internet. But contrary to what online sites are saying and common assumptions, print advertising is not dead. There are still benefits and disadvantages to both methods and the best way to succeed is to find a vehicle that covers both bases - and that's where we come in!

The Benefits of print advertising:

1. Print adverts last longer and will be seen often.
2. They will be seen by a large number of people and have the ability to hit a specific audience.
3. There is a more creative potential with print advertising.
4. There is a positive perception of newspaper advertising - it will encourage people to think the client is serious.

The Benefits of online advertising:

1. The advert content can be easily updated.
2. It's online 24/7, 12 months a year, all round the world.
3. A massive audience, with all ages now online.
4. Very quick response - you can be receiving candidates hours after posting your advert.

The Advertiser series of newspapers is distributed every week and the latest editions can be found on our website at

POCHETTINO KEEPS THE FAITH IN KANE

By Dominique Stafford

sport.enfield@nlhnews.co.uk

TOTTENHAM HOTSPUR head coach Mauricio Pochettino insists that he still has full faith in Harry Kane despite his stuttering start to the new campaign.

Kane enjoyed a dramatic rise to prominence last season as he established himself as one of the leading strikers in the Premier League, scoring 30 goals in all competitions and breaking into the England team.

However, Kane is yet to score in four league matches this season, and wasted a great opportunity to open his account during Saturday's 0-0 draw at home to Everton, which leaves Spurs still searching for their first win.

But Pochettino has no doubt that Kane will get back on track soon, and he also felt that Tottenham deserved more than a point from the weekend's match.

"I am happy with Harry," he said. "He had two or three clear chances but I am happy. He needs to work hard and play. A goal will come for Harry. All strikers have spells like this and only time can do it. I trust in him."

"We created a lot of chances, but you need to score. It was impossible in this match but I am happy with the performance. I think Tim Howard [Everton keeper] was man of the match and that says it all."

"It was our first clean sheet, which was a positive. We feel frustrated because we're playing better than the opponent but drawing, and this upsets me. We have to stay calm and improve."

Saturday's match also saw new signing Heung-Min Son unveiled to the White Hart Lane faithful, after the South Korea international joined Tottenham on a five-year deal from Bayer Leverkusen for a reported £22million.

The 23-year-old forward has won 44 caps and scored 29 goals in 87 appearances for Leverkusen.

"Spurs is such a big club and a really good team," Son said. "My goal has always been to play in the Premier League and I have a great opportunity to do that now with Tottenham – I am really happy about this."

"I am also very pleased and honoured to work together with good players such as Harry, Christian Eriksen and all the players at Spurs. I'd like to help them perform and, together with them, make our team even more successful."

"I'm very excited to play at White Hart Lane. I haven't played at the stadium before but I'm looking forward to going there and performing for the Spurs fans as soon as possible. The support I get from the fans motivates me more and more."

"In the Premier League there are a lot of good players so I have to really work hard and be prepared to show my ability. I like to play a passing game and prefer to work with offensive players who are dominant and can scare the opponents. Bold and daring – this is how I like to try to play."

He added: "I am a player who really loves football. I learned the game under my father, who worked as a football coach in my school. I've loved the game since I was a child and formally started to play when I was ten years old."

A tough start: Harry Kane has not managed to find the net for Spurs in their first four games of the season

Win boosts North London survival bid

NORTH LONDON gave a big boost to their hopes of avoiding relegation from Division Three of the Middlesex County Cricket League by recording a resounding ten-wicket win at home to Harrow Town on Saturday.

The hosts are just one place off the foot of the table, but they took full advantage of winning the toss and deciding to bowl first in helpful conditions as they dominated this match.

Tom Wakeford was North London's star with the ball, returning figures of 7-32 as Harrow Town could only make 54 and the hosts encountered no problems in knocking off the runs as they raced to 57-0 in reply to seal a victory which means that a winning draw in their final match of the season on Saturday will guarantee that they do not finish bottom.

Meanwhile, newly-crowned Division Three champions Highgate continued their fine form by winning by nine wickets at MTSSC.

Prashanth Srinivas (7-15) was the main destroyer as the hosts were dismissed for just 104, and Chris Arul (51) and Jake Sharland (43 not out) then shone with the bat as Highgate eased to 105-1.

However, Hornsey's faint hopes of securing promotion from Division Two came to an end with a three-wicket defeat at Eastcote.

A solid display with the bat saw Hornsey post a total of 182 in difficult conditions despite the efforts of James Rosewarne (6-45), but Christopher James' unbeaten 67 helped Eastcote to make it to 185-7 in reply.

Elsewhere, North Middlesex romped to an eight-wicket win at Richmond in a rain-hit clash in the Premier Division.

Will Vanderspar (4-19), Ed Bird (4-29) and Joel Hughes (2-15) combined to dismiss Richmond for 106 before the weather intervened – leading to North Middlesex being set a revised target of 80, which they achieved for the loss of two wickets, with Vanderspar (28 not out) top scoring.

North Middlesex host Indian Gymkhana on Saturday, while Hornsey entertain Enfield, North London visit Kenton and Highgate are at home to Barnes.

Double defeat for struggling Skolars

THE London Skolars endured a disappointing bank holiday weekend as they were beaten in both their matches in rugby league's Kingstone Press Championship One.

The Skolars, who are just one place above the foot of the table, firstly lost 26-14 at home to North Wales Crusaders on Friday night and then suffered a 36-16 defeat in a rearranged match against Keighley Cougars on Monday.

Friday's clash saw the hosts get off to the perfect start as they grabbed the opening try inside two minutes, with Aaron Small collecting Jermaine Coleman's high kick and scoring in the corner.

But the Crusaders hit back and a converted try from Benjamin Julien saw them level the scores eight minutes later.

A penalty from Tommy Connick enabled the Skolars to retake the lead, but they were again unable to hold on to their advantage for long and an Andrew Joy try just before half-time put the visitors in front for the first time.

The second period saw the Crusaders become increasingly dominant and they struck again on 47 minutes as Julien scored his second try of the afternoon.

The visitors then took a firm grip on the match eight minutes later as Ryan Duffy touched down to give them a 12-point lead.

Small gave the hosts some hope by crossing the line with nine minutes remaining, but Jamie responded with a try for the Crusaders soon after to settle the outcome and ensure that Will Martin's late try was scant consolation for the hosts.

Meanwhile, Monday's match – played at Hemel Hempstead – proved to be an emotional encounter as it was rescheduled from when the original meeting between the sides was abandoned on May 3 following the tragic death of Keighley's Danny Jones.

And it was Keighley who rose to the occasion better as they enjoyed a late surge to claim an ultimately comfortable triumph.

The London Skolars go to Coventry Bears on Saturday.
